

GLASS Alliance News

2008

Northwestern University—February 2008 - Co-organized the first Mega Midwest AGEP Conference in Chicago, Illinois. Graduate students and faculty from eighteen universities participated in this three day professional development conference.

Ohio State University—July 2008—will host “Surviving Your First Years as an Assistant Professor” a two-day workshop for advanced GLASS/SBES graduate students on the transition from graduate student to faculty member.

Pennsylvania State University— will host the Professional Development and Retention Conference and the Achievement Conference. Both now include students from the Ronald E. McNair Scholars Program, the Summer Research Opportunities students, and visiting students from across the country who will be recruited for the following academic year.

Temple University—June 2008—will host the “The INS and OUTS of Spatial Learning: From Theory to Practice” a professional conference at the University of Chicago’s Gleacher Center. Graduate and undergraduate students are welcome.

University of Chicago - Winter 2008 - offering a special course to instruct SBES students on preparing a paper for scholarly publication.

University of Illinois—Urbana-Champaign 2008
Established study groups and tutoring services for Students enrolled in social science statistics courses.

University of Wisconsin—Madison—Fall 2007
School of Social Work professor recipient of YWCA award for diversity efforts instituted as a result of the AGEP SBES initiative on campus

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

COLLEGE OF
LETTERS & SCIENCE
University of Wisconsin-Madison